This Bulletin is brought to you by donations from Mrs. R. Tuttle and George Gander.

Welcome to this issue of the Bulletin. Since the last publication, the Regiment and Association hosted a contingent from the King's Royal Hussars (KRH) and hosted the Westlake Brothers Souvenir Association (WBSA). In addition, Major Allan Finney visited the KRH in England. We will report on these in the next issue.

In this Bulletin, Mike McNorgan tells us about the helmet the Museum acquired some time ago. We also have a thank-you from Pat O'Hagan for the tremendous support we had for the annual St. Pat's Pub Night. During the first two weeks in May, members of the Regiment and Association went to Holland. LCol Joe Murray (official tour guide) gives us an article on the trip. John Leistra gives us an update on the Cavalry Troop and unfortunately, there are several deaths to report.

The Regimental members have been away on courses, training and taskings during the summer time-frame. They participated in the Brigade Exercise at Petawawa during the last two weeks of August and are now home preparing for the upcoming training season.

The Change of Command is being held on 13 September at "A" Block parade square. Major Bernie Scheid will become the new Commanding Officer. Guests are expected to be seated by 1315 hrs.

The Association will conduct their remembrance service at "Holy Roller" in Victoria Park on 8 November. Dress is blazers and medals and berets – remember to dress warmly. You need to be at the tank by 1030 hrs. Please consider joining us in remembrance. We need your attendance!

Enjoy this issue of the Bulletin.

A message from the editor:

My apologies for the delay in getting out this issue of the Bulletin. As a result, we have a number of events to catch up on. As Mike mentioned, we will have updates on our KRH and WBSA visits in the next issue.

It is my goal to provide the newsletter on a quarterly basis; with issues in March, June, September and December. As always, if you have any questions, comments or ideas of what you might like to see in your Regimental newsletter, please contact 1sthussarsbulletin@gmail.com. Thanks for your continued support.

A letter to the editor:

Nick Corrie is so thoughtful and entertaining, and I couldn't think of a more fitting way to spend Family Day than watching his film From Horses to Horsepower at the home that my dad Don Black, shared with his wife, Julie Sert.

It was a very emotional time for us, coming just days before the first anniversary of dad's death on Feb. 20. We're proud of dad, of the work Nick has done on behalf of the Regiment and, as always, to be associated with the First Hussars!

St. Patrick's Thank-You...

I want to take this opportunity to thank-you all for making the 2015 St. Patrick's Pub Night such a great evening. I heard nothing but compliments about the event. I asked one person in particular what they liked about the evening, and their response was: We liked everything about it! They continued to say that friends of theirs from London raved about how much fun they had, and they did not realize this type of event went on in London.

The event was attended by about 380 guests and raised over $18,000! A special thanks goes out to all the hardworking people behind the scenes who helped to make this event such a success. Our success is the 1st Hussars success...thank-you all. See you next year at our 2016 St. Pat's Pub Night!

-Pat O'Hagan

Liberation Trail

By Joe Murray

A group of 30 soldiers and approximately 30 Association members and friends of the Regiment journeyed to Holland to participate in the ceremonies marking the 70th Anniversary of the end of WWII and the Liberation of Holland. This trip would not have been possible without the support of HCol Maas, HLCol Hogan and the Association. We were fortunate to have in our group two World War Two veterans, John Mills from “B” Sqn and Aris Domnas from “A” Sqn. We landed in Amsterdam and then made our way to Zutphen, a town that the Hussars helped to liberate. This was to be our base for five days while we participated in the ceremonies.

Upon arrival in Zutphen there was a ceremony at the City Hall where the Mayor greeted us and Aris Domnas, John Mills and Sheila Dejaegher were presented commemorative medals to mark the occasion and to give thanks to them for their service during the liberation of Holland in 1945. At the end of ceremony, the group of those who did not go to a bar, went to bed.

The next day marked our first visit and ceremony. The 1st Hussars went to the Groesbeek Cemetery where we participated in our first commemoration. After the Ceremony each Hussar searched out and put markers on the graves of fellow Hussars who fell 70 years ago. It was very sobering to look at the number of graves and the youth of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

Groesbeek is very close to Arnhem and we made a visit to the “Bridge Too Far”, made famous by the Market Garden operation in September 1944. The bridge is officially called “The John Frost” bridge.

The next day was the largest cemetery ceremony, which was held at Holten. There were more than five thousand people packed into the cemetery and you had to have a ticket to get in! Prime Minister Harper and members of the Dutch Royal Family participated. The Regiment laid its own wreath and the official party included HCol Maas, HLCol Hogan, LCol Philips and RSM Warner. The highlights of the ceremony included the dropping of thousands of poppies over the graves and the placing of flowers by Dutch children on each and every grave.

Later that day we went to Zetten and Hemmen Castle, where the Regiment had not returned for over 70 years. It was in these towns, where six medals for valour were won by the Regiment. The Hussars donated a copy of their citations, pictures, and medals to be hung in the City Hall. There was a short and meaningful ceremony, especially for Aris. He looked at the picture of Lt Cressey who won the M.C. and he saw himself in the photo. Aris was the gunner for Lt Cressey.

A few hours later, our contingent split into two groups to participate in the “Silent March” that is held throughout Holland every May 4th. One group stayed in Zetten and the other group stayed in Zutphen.

Cont'd -

The ceremony began with a church service and hymns and then a silent walk to the town's cenotaph. This ceremony focused on the suffering of the Dutch people as well as the sacrifice of those who gave them liberty.

The fifth day of the tour was the liberation parade, marking the surrender of the German Forces to the Canadians and Dutch on May 5th, 1945. There were 250,000 Dutch lining the parade route in Wageningen and the 1st Hussars once again made history by leading the Parade. The Regiment was overwhelmed by the reception and one soldier said "I was marching on air". There were many tears of pride shed for our veterans who were with us and for those who did not come home. John Mills made the front page of almost every newspaper in Canada and was also interviewed by CTV National news. This was a very full day and after returning to Zutphen, the young Hussars kept up Regimental tradition and literally drank a bar dry. Fortunately for them the following day was a "down day". No uniforms, but an incredible visit to a museum in Overloon. Overloon was the site of a major battle between the Germans, Americans and British. They left the field undisturbed for many years, with the tanks and equipment in the positions that they had been knocked out. About 15 years ago, they moved all of the exhibits under one roof. It is a huge museum and very well done. On the way back to Zutphen we drove through Germany and Keppeln. This was the site of one of the Regiment's greatest battles. Major Jake Powell was nominated for the Victoria Cross and several MC's and MM's were also awarded during this engagement.

The final two days were spent in Amsterdam, where the Regiment did all of the "touristy" things expected of visitors. We did visit the Resistance Museum which is in the former Jewish area of the city. Almost 400,000 Jews were deported to the death camps from Holland and fewer than 10,000 returned. During our guided walk we saw the places of deportation, places of hiding and most poignant of all - small brass plaques embedded in the sidewalk outside of houses where people had been living. On each plaque were their names, date of deportation and what happened to them.

The Canadians are not called visitors, or veterans, they are called "Liberators". It was an incredible experience and the pilgrimage achieved its objectives of remembering, honouring, strengthening the ties between Canada and the Dutch people and finally, passing on the stories and educating the younger members of the Regiment. It was truly liberating.

1st Hussars Museum Report By Steve Liggett

The Museum was able to once again obtain a grant to pay for summer students. As a result, the Museum was able to open from 9:00 am to 5:00 pm Monday to Friday until the end of August. Heather and Jessica did a fantastic job staffing the location and continued with the work of documenting our extensive collection of artifacts. We had a very successful Canada Day with close to 200 visitors. A special thanks goes out to the Cavalry Troop for spending time at the Museum, and drawing a crowd. Everyone wanted to see the horses. We will be a part of Doors Open London on Saturday September 26th and Sunday September 27th from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm. The Museum will continue to open Saturdays and holidays 1-4 pm until Saturday, November 14th. It is after this time that we will be closed for the winter, but access to the Museum can be made available by appointment.

The Albert Pattern Helmet and the 1st Hussars

By Mike McNorgan

In 1843 the dragoon regiments of the British army adopted a steel helmet termed the 'Albert pattern.' This headwear had front and back peaks and was held on the wearer's head by means of a metal chin strap backed with leather. The front of the helmet carried a unit badge, while the top had a plume-stem from which emanated a horse-hair plume of appropriate colour or colours.

Canadian cavalry regiments were quick to adopt the stylish new item. Although worn primarily by regiments of Dragoons and Dragoon Guards, it was also used by regiments of Horse and even by some Hussars in lieu of the Busby. In the 1870s the design was somewhat simplified with some of the elaborate embellishments on the front peak being removed while brass was substituted for steel as the principal material of the helmet's body. Today Albert pattern brass helmets can be seen on the heads of soldiers in full dress from The Royal Canadian Dragoons, Lord Strathcona's Horse (RC) and the Governor General's Horse Guards, to name but a few.

The 1st Hussars date their origins from the year 1856 when two volunteer cavalry troops were raised. The eldest, in St Thomas, dates from 20 March 1856 and would eventually become 'A' Squadron of the 1st Hussars, while the next was raised in London on 24 July 1856, becoming in the fullness of time the Hussars' 'B' Squadron. However, there were two Militia cavalry units in the area before 1856 and although there is unfortunately no direct link between them and the 1st Hussars they are a part of the Regiment's history. The older of these two units was the '1st London Independent Troop of Cavalry' raised on 9 May 1851 and drawing its personnel from Middlesex County. The next was 'The First Middlesex Light Dragoons', raised on 24 April 1853 and drawing on the Town of London for its recruits. It would appear to be typical military logic that the unit with the name Middlesex would recruit in London while the unit with London in its title recruited in the county!

One of these units, sadly we do not know which one, was issued with an Albert pattern steel helmet, 1847-pattern. The unit badge shows a numeral 1 in front of the name LONDON with the initials CW below. CW stood for Canada West, the name by which what is now Ontario was known between the years 1841 and 1867. Above the designation 1 LONDON is a beaver facing left. The beaver was a common symbol on Militia badges of the time. The Queen's cipher 'VR' for Victoria Regina is at the top of the badge. The horse-hair plume is black.

On 24 March 2007 an example of this helmet was put up for auction in Paris Ontario. The Regiment's Don Bondy, accompanied by Mike Steele, attended the auction with the intent of securing this piece of regimental history. Unfortunately, there was an American militaria collector also bidding on the item, by telephone, and the price climbed high before the two Hussar representatives were successful. In researching their prize they would discover that there is only one other example known, a helmet held by the Canadian War Museum in Ottawa. The War Museum's version is in excellent condition, which unhappily the Regiment's version is not. The helmet purchased in Paris has a large hole in its right side and several cracks in the metal. Nevertheless, for an object so old and rare it is still a prize find.

Although we have no definite proof as to which unit this helmet originally belonged, this writer believes that the evidence leans toward the 1st London Independent Troop of Cavalry on the grounds of the designation '1 London' on the badge.

Chet's battle dress

I am seeking any information on Sgt Chester (Chet) Lumley of A Sdn 3 Troop. Lumley's DD tank was one of the first groups of Hussars tanks to land on June 6th and duke it out with German defences on Mike Red in support of C Coy RWR.

On July 8, 1944 he gets into a fight with some panthers from 3 Komp. 1 Batt. 12 SS Panzer Regt., 12 SS Div. and gets wounded with two of his crew. Although his tank (yet unnamed) was on fire, he was able to put the fire out and save the vehicle from destruction, winning an MID.

If anyone knows anything about Chet's service or has any photos of him, please contact Michael Reintjes at tankreintjes@rogers.com

Thanks,

The Cavalry Rides Again!

By John Leistra

The Cavalry Troop in Rodney, Ontario

On Canada Day 2015, The 1st Hussars Cavalry Troop rallied to the call at London Ontario's Harris Park for the mid-day celebrations. Dress for the day had the Troop Leader and Colour Party in Victorian ceremonial dress uniforms with busbies. The remainder of the troop wore WWI uniforms. The mounts were as varied as one could expect from calling out a "militia troop", just like the original Troops of London, St. Thomas, Courtright, and Kingsville. There were quarter horses, a cheval Canadien, and an everfaithful mule. (Yes, mules function quite well in the cavalry.) Our beloved Mounted Troop had the honour of carrying the Dominion of Canada's red ensign flag. Our ground support staff was quick to react to any need or immediate response to a discharge of horse muck. We were treated to a fly-over of four Harvard aircraft. No one was more surprised by the aircraft than the horses. All seven startled and three of them literally had the "poop scared out of them". As the aircraft circled the park, the mule, the cheval Canadien and four of the horses stood their ground. One horse was unsure of the noisy yellow flying beasts and was skittish until the aircraft departed. The Troop handled their mounts quite well under these conditions.

After the Harris Park engagement, the Troop packed up and answered the call to participate in the evening portion of Glencoe Ontario's Canada Day celebration. The Glencoe crowd was treated to a demonstration of different troop formations, as well as weapons handling for both sword and lance. Maj Allan Finney gave an exciting narrative from the stage and also told of the history of the 1st Hussars.

The Troop's next call out was on July 11, 2015, to the Rodney Ontario's Cactus, Cattle and Cowboys Day. Dress for the day represented both Victorian ceremonial dress and WWI. "Corporal" Ted Gough led the troop for the parade through town. "Marching On The Colours" and "Marching Off The Colours" was a little challenge of its own. The Troop's "Colours" (1st Hussars' Camp Flag) must be marched on with the last dozen paces slowed down as to not spook the horses. The post-parade debrief assumed a social nature and a discussion about the original 1st Hussars.

July's last call out was to London Ontario's Fanshawe Park Pioneer Village, on July 25th & 26th, for the WWI weekend. The dress was WWI with Stetson hats. A simple display of an actual WWI First Hussars saddle, a 1908 pattern sword, a 100+ year old bamboo lance. Two members of the Troop answered questions and participated in a WWI fashion show. 1st Hussar uniforms were all the rage! There are a lot of people that will remember having handled a real sword and lance, seeing the CEF brand on a 1H WWI saddle, checking out the ingenuity of a collapsible water bucket. Cpl Ryan Post may have inspired a couple of young people to enlist in the Canadian Forces. All in all, it was a good weekend.

I must thank the generous donors that provided the Cavalry Troop with an enclosed trailer. This has been a real blessing for moving the Troop's kit around. It functions as a portable Quartermaster's Stores from which we can rapidly kit out each trooper. The trailer's graphics are a real eye catcher and with a little spit and polish, it really shines. Volunteer work on the trailer is progressing as time permits. Wheel bearings were on the top of the list. Next came a clean-up and waxing. Some wiring issues have been rectified. Pitted aluminum trim is getting polished by hand. A rack for 12 lances has been installed against the ceiling, thus securing the lances for safe transit. There are some more improvements and upgrades coming to further improve the efficiency of the trailer and securement of the kit.

New enclosed trailer thanks to our generous sponsors.

At this time we would like to bring a humble appeal to the members of the 1st Hussars Family. Funds are needed to help restore saddles and other original kit, to purchase more uniforms and other needed associated items. Donated relevant items will be graciously accepted. Any monetary donations can be sent to the 1st Hussars, 701 Oxford Street East, London, ON, N5Y 4T7 (Attn: Mike Steele) or to Mike Steele, 4 Golfview Cres., London, ON, N6M 5M9. Cheques made out to: 1st Hussars Cavalry Fund. Please include a note that it is to be directed to the Cav Troop and include a return address to receive a tax receipt.
